West Bengal plans to relocate two more tigers from Assam and Bihar to Buxa Tiger Reserve in Alipurduar district to strengthen its declining tiger population. The relocation is expected to take place by the end of November 2026.

The initiative aims to improve the reserve’s resident tiger population and strengthen conservation efforts. It also highlights interstate cooperation in wildlife management and tiger population recovery.

APSC Relevance: Tiger Conservation, Interstate Wildlife Translocation